Students turn everyday materials into creative artworks

Rukmani Birla Modern High School's Art Fusion Club recently organised a series of creative activities in which students transformed old newspapers into pen stands, jewellery boxes, wall clocks and decorative hangings using the paper-coiling technique. In July, students also created models and artworks using different types of clay, exploring a variety of textures, forms and artistic techniques. The activities aimed to nurture creativity, develop practical skills and promote sustainable practices among students. By repurposing discarded materials and experimenting with clay, students learnt how creativity can be combined with environmental responsibility.
